ISLE Journal: Interdisciplinary Studies in Literature and Environment is the official journal of ASLE, published both in print and online quarterly. Distribution is primarily to ASLE members (est. 1500) and institutional subscribers (more than 3,000 access points, mainly online, including nearly 1,000 gratis for developing countries). Content is juried and includes both scholarly articles in ecocriticism and creative works of nonfiction and poetry.

ASLE News: The association produces an e-newsletter several times a year. The newsletter is sent to members and subscribers (approx. 3,000 total) by email; stories are posted at the website on the ASLE News tab: www.asle.org/stay-informed/asle-news/

Website: The ASLE website serves as a rich resource in the burgeoning field of environmental humanities. There are articles on innovative teaching models, member profiles on projects or ideas across a broad range of arts and sciences, sample syllabi from courses, a list of schools with programs in the field, links to various online journals and portals, and introductory articles and materials on the field. Member publications and accomplishments are posted as well.

Line 30: Memberships

ASLE activities serve the professional and scholarly needs and interests of its members and provide them with opportunities in the environmental humanities field: subscription to and publishing opportunities in our quarterly journal ISLE, an e-newsletter, eligibility to run for office, serve as a coordinator or on committees, apply for writing awards and grants present at a biennial conference, off-year off-year symposia, or international conference, join student mentoring programs, and participate in online discussion lists.

Line 31: ASLE Grants and Writing Awards

Grants: ASLE offers a number of grants to assist our members with funding for their innovative projects and publications.

Translation Grants support translating work in international ecocriticism into English to expand exchanges across cultures. Subvention Grants support innovative writing and digital/visual media projects in ecocriticism and the environmental humanities. Community Grants support projects build connections between the environmental humanities and place-based environmental organizations. International Membership Grants give free 2-year ASLE memberships to scholars outside North America without access to funding.

Writing Awards: ASLE gives out awards at the biennial conference to honor outstanding work in environmental writing, for published books and for graduate student papers presented at the conference. These awards were established to encourage excellence in the field.
