Island Time:
The Fate of Place in a Wired, Warming World
Welcome to Victoria!

We’re Glad You’re Here!

Over eighteen months ago, we began planning this program on a scrap of paper in Rochelle Johnson’s dining room. Today . . . well, let’s just say our scrap of paper has gotten a little bit bigger.

We had several goals in mind when we first started imagining this gathering, but the most important was to create an intellectual and creative space where things can happen that would not happen otherwise. We did so in response to Bill McKibben’s challenge to us at the last ASLE conference in Spartanburg: that if we are going to travel to a conference in a time of climate crisis, we should “make it count.” We hope we have achieved that goal by building more time into the program for conversation, dialogue, and discussion about our most pressing environmental and cultural questions: not only about human meaning, purpose, and value but also about climate change, social justice, and the economic and technological transformations now reshaping our world.

Thank you for joining us as we gather on “island time” to consider “the fate of place in a wired, warming world.”

Dan Philippon, ASLE President and Program Chair
Richard Pickard, Local Arrangements Chair

Thank You

- our hosts at UVic:
  - the other members of the Local Arrangements Committee: Nick Bradley and Nicole Shukin
  - David Turpin, President of the University; Andrew Rippen, Dean of Humanities; and Robert Miles, Chair, Department of English
  - the numerous volunteers during the conference: faculty, graduate students, and undergraduate students
  - web technicians Stewart Arneil and Martin Holmes at Humanities Computing
  - housing and food services managers Ruth Hall and Daphne Andrews and meetings coordinator Heather Regan at the SUB
  - Arie Epstein and his staff at AV Services, for technical support during the conference
  - all the office staff members in the Department of English
  - Robin Sutherland and Beth Doman at Communications Services for the aerial photo of campus on the front cover
  - Don Pierce and Chris Marshall at Photographic Services for the photo of Victoria’s Inner Harbour on the back cover

- ASLE’s ever-resourceful Managing Director: Amy McIntyre

- members of last year’s visionary Executive Council, which helped to plan this year’s conference: Paul Bogard (senior Graduate Student Liaison), Richard Kerridge (at-large member), and Sheryl St. Germain (at-large member)

- the hosts and program coordinators of ASLE’s last three biennial conferences for their guidance and support: John Lane, Ellen Goldey, and Karla Armbruster (2007), Molly Westling and Alison Wallace (2005), and Adam Sweeting and Ian Marshall (2003)

- the review committee for the Graduate Student Travel Awards: Tom Hillard, Rochelle Johnson, and Amy McIntyre

- the judges for ASLE’s biennial awards in Ecocriticism and Environmental Creative Writing:
  - Scholarly Book Award: George Hart, Patrick Murphy, and Sara Spurgeon
  - Creative Writing Book Award: Andrew Wingfield, Gretchen Legler, and Ann Fisher-Wirth
  - Graduate Student Paper (Scholarly): Joni Adamson, Richard Kerridge, and Serenella Iovino

Additional Information

Parking
Parking on campus requires a permit, which can be obtained at automated parking kiosks in the campus lots for hourly ($1 CDN), daily ($6 CDN) or weekly ($24 CDN) rates. All registrants will receive a city transit pass to use on public transportation for the week.

Morning Meetings
We encourage ASLE members who wish to coordinate early morning walks, yoga, and breakfast discussions on topics of interest to use the bulletin board in the commons area to do so.

Tote Bags
The complimentary tote bags all registrants receive were made in the U.S.A. of 100 percent certified organic cotton canvas by Western Textile, a third-generation family firm that practices sustainability principles and is a member of Green America’s Green Business Network of socially and environmentally responsible businesses.

Carbon Offsets
Funds donated for carbon offsets as part of the registration process will go to “atmosfair,” a non-profit organization based in Bonn, Germany. Atmosfair contributes to many projects, including generating electricity from waste at the University of Rio in Brazil, providing solar heaters for school kitchens in India, and making solar electricity and heating available in South Africa. For more information, see http://www.atmosfair.de/index.php?id=9&L=3. Although ASLE recognizes the limitations and complexities of carbon offsets, we nevertheless believe they are an important way we can reduce ASLE’s carbon footprint and support our mission by maintaining and advocating ecologically sustainable practices.

Location of Major Events
Most plenaries will be held in the University Centre (UVC), most receptions will be held in the Student Union Building (SUB), and concurrent sessions will be held in the Clearihue (CLE), MacLaurin (MAC), and David Strong buildings (DSB).

There will be a short program at 7 pm.
Wednesday 3 June

Session A : 8:30 – 10 am

Our Environmental Challenges: Responding to the Climate Crisis
University Centre Farquhar Auditorium

Moderator: Rochelle Johnson, The College of Idaho

Richard B. Primack is a Professor of Biology at Boston University and the author of the widely used textbook Essentials of Conservation Biology, now in its fourth edition. He is currently Editor-in-Chief of the journal Biological Conservation, a Past President of the Association for Tropical Biology, and the recipient of a Guggenheim Fellowship and a Putnam Fellowship at the Arnold Arboretum of Harvard University. His recent work on climate change in Thoreau's Concord has been featured in Smithsonian, National Wildlife, the Christian Science Monitor, and other prominent publications.

Amy Seidl is associate director of LivingFuture Foundation in Huntington, Vermont, where she oversees research and programs in the science of sustainability. Her background is in ecology and social change, and her research interests include climate change biology, permaculture, and renewable energy technologies. She has taught in the environmental studies programs at the University of Vermont and Middlebury College, where she is currently a research scholar. Her new book, Early Spring: An Ecologist and Her Children Wake to a Warming World, examines global warming and its effect on our sense of landscape, time, and season.

Session E : 7:30 – 9 pm

Place, Story, and Aboriginal Identity
University Centre Farquhar Auditorium

Moderator: Richard Pickard, University of Victoria

Jeannette Armstrong of the Okanagan First Nation, Penticton Indian Band, is Executive Director of the En’Owkin Centre, an Indigenous cultural, educational, and creative arts institution, which offers post-secondary transfer diplomas and certificate programs. A writer, teacher, artist, sculptor, and activist, she is the author of the novels Slash and Whispering in Shadows, as well as poems, short stories, and children’s books. The recipient of a Buffet Award for Indigenous Leadership, Armstrong is the grand-niece of Mourning Dove (1888-1936), also known as Hum-Ishu-Ma and Christine Quintasket, who is considered the first Native American women novelist for her work Cogewea, the Half-Blood.

Kla-kisht-ke-is, Chief Simon Lucas, a leader of British Columbia’s Hesquiaht First Nation on the west coast of Vancouver Island, has served as Coastal Co-chair of the B.C. Aboriginal Fisheries Commission and Executive Board Member of the Aboriginal Council of B.C. Declared an “elder” at age 40, Chief Lucas has been a tireless advocate for conservation and aboriginal rights and has played a leading role integrating First Nations’ knowledge and values into emerging modern ecosystem science. He is also a strong supporter of higher learning opportunities for aboriginal students. Chief Lucas is the recipient of the 2003 National Aboriginal Achievement Award and an honorary degree from the University of British Columbia.

Please join us for a brief ceremony at the beginning of this session, as ASLE gratefully receives permission from the Coast Salish people to hold our gathering on their native land.

Reception: 9:30 pm

International Reception
Michele Pujol Room, Student Union Building

Welcome ASLE attendees from around the world, share stories about teaching and writing ecocriticism and environmental literature in a global context, and discuss the possibilities for international cooperation.

First-come, first-served open bar, followed by a cash bar. There will be live music, as well as a short program featuring Scott Slovic at 9:45 pm.

Co-sponsored by Wilfrid Laurier University Press, the European Association for the Study of Literature, Culture and the Environment (EASLCE), and the University of Victoria’s Office of International Affairs.

Note to ASLE Old-timers: This is NOT what used to pass as the “International Reception,” where someone ran out and got a few six-packs for folks from outside the U.S.! Note the open bar and live music. It’s ASLE’s first international conference, so let’s celebrate in style! Open to everyone.

Writing, Film, and the Environment: Stories in Landscape
University Centre Farquhar Auditorium
Moderator: Salma Monani, Gettysburg College

Karsten Heuer is a University of Calgary-trained wildlife biologist who also works as a seasonal park warden in Canadian national parks. In 1998 and 1999, he hiked 3,400 km to promote the Yellowstone to Yukon (Y2Y) conservation initiative, which he chronicled in Walking the Big Wild. In 2003, he and his wife (the filmmaker Leanne Allison) migrated on foot for five months with the 123,000-member Porcupine Caribou Herd to publicize the herd’s reliance on the Arctic National Wildlife Refuge for its calving grounds. Their journey resulted in the award-winning film Being Caribou, as well as Heuer’s book of the same name. Most recently, Heuer and Allison spent another five months (along with their toddler, Zev!) paddling, walking, and sailing across Canada to visit Farley Mowat, and they are currently working on a film and book documenting their trip.

Reception: 9:30 pm

Field Sessions (on campus and self-guided options)

1. The Great Squeeze: Surviving the Human Project
   MACLAURIN D288
   This film explores the ecological and economic crisis stemming from our dependence on cheap and abundant energy. It also identifies historical patterns of self-destructive and shortsighted behaviors that parallel our modern times. The Great Squeeze features economist Lester Brown, Peak Oil expert Richard Heinberg, biologist Edward O. Wilson, marine advocate Alexandra Cousteau, author Howard Kunstler, and paleoclimatologist Jim White, among others. For more information, see http://www.thegreatsqueeze.com/

2. Self-guided options in Greater Victoria:
   - new and used bookstores in the downtown area
   - a Saanich Peninsula winery tour
   - the Royal BC Museum (possibly including Wawaditla or Emily Carr House) and its North American premiere of the traveling exhibition “Treasures: The World’s Cultures from the British Museum”
   - all kinds of other possibilities to personalize your conference experience!

Dinner: 5 – 7:30 pm
Session M: 7:30 – 9 pm

Green Poetries from Canada: Place, Poetry, and Witness
University Centre Farquhar Auditorium

Moderator: Nicholas Bradley, University of Victoria

Jan Zwicky is Associate Professor of Philosophy at the University of Victoria. She is the author of Wisdom and Metaphor (shortlisted for the 2004 Governor General’s Award for Nonfiction), Lyric Philosophy, and four collections of poetry, including Songs for Relinquishing the Earth (winner of the 1999 Governor General’s Award for Poetry) and Robinson’s Crossing (winner of the 2004 Dorothy Livesay Poetry Prize). Her interests include the history of ideas, metaphilosophy, ancient Greek philosophy and interdisciplinary work in the humanities.

Rita Wong is Assistant Professor in Critical and Cultural Studies at Emily Carr University in Vancouver. Her work investigates the relationships between decolonization, social justice, ecology, and contemporary poetics. A recipient of the Asian Canadian Writers’ Workshop Emerging Writer Award, she is the author of two books of poetry: monkeypuzzle and forage (winner of the 2008 Dorothy Livesay Poetry Prize). Wong’s poems and essays have appeared in a wide variety of anthologies and magazines.

Andrew C. Revkin is the environment reporter for The New York Times, where he has written widely on such subjects as the assault on the Amazon, Hurricane Katrina, and the science and politics of climate change. His articles have won many journalism awards, including the American Association for the Advancement of Science Journalism Award and an Investigative Reporters and Editors Award. Before joining the Times in 1995, Revkin was a senior editor of Discover, a staff writer for the Los Angeles Times, and a senior writer at Science Digest. He has a biology degree from Brown University and a Master’s degree in journalism from Columbia University, and he has taught environmental reporting at Columbia’s Graduate School of Journalism. He is also the author of The Burning Season: The Murder of Chico Mendes and the Fight for the Amazon Rain Forest and, most recently, the children’s book The North Pole Was Here: Puzzles and Perils at the Top of the World. His blog, “Dot Earth,” has quickly become a “must read” source of online environmental news.

Andy’s talk will be followed by a panel discussion featuring
H. Emerson Blake, Executive Director of The Orion Society and Editor-in-Chief of Orion, and Daniel Slager, Publisher and CEO of Milkweed Editions.

Session S: 9 am

Post-conference Field Trips (pre-registration required)

1. Walbran Valley bus trip and hike (approx. 12 hours; $45, with meals to be purchased en route)

The Western Canada Wilderness Committee will lead a full-day bus tour to the 13,000-hectare Walbran Valley, a three-hour drive from Victoria, home to Canada’s most spectacular and diverse stands of ancient trees. The Carmanah Walbran has become famous not only because of the immense size of its old growth trees—including the 95m (313 ft) Carmanah Giant, and the Castle Giant red cedar, almost 5m (16 ft) in diameter—but also because of the endangered marbled murrelet, a bird that requires old growth forests and high cliffs in which to build their nests. Because of the length of this trip, anyone registering for it should not plan to leave Victoria on Sunday, June 7.

2. Saltspring Island (approx. 8 hours, $65, incl. lunch)

This bus tour will look at the natural and cultural history of the Gulf Islands, particularly protected and threatened natural areas, the history of different ethnic groups in the region (particularly Japanese-Canadian, Hawaiian, and African-American settlers), and the Gulf Islands’ history as a surviving outpost of the 1960s. Highlights of this trip will include walks through a Garry oak reserve and heritage farms, viewing opportunities from Mount Maxwell, and time with the Japanese Garden Society (which is building the Heiwa Peace Park, in part as a memorial of the internment of Japanese-Canadians during the Second World War).

Can Poetry Save the Earth?
A Field Guide to Nature Poems
John Felstiner

“Felstiner’s text here is a series of deep reflections on some of the finest, steadiest British and American poets of the last five centuries, especially the twentieth. It is not about their ideology or activism, but their seeing of the actual world, their ‘dreaming’ as the Mojave storytellers might say, the story of the earth—and their deeply felt love for it. Poetry is, quietly and in the best sense, pagan. Our own English-language poets have—John Felstiner shows us—done their work. It’s up to us now and on forward to remember and learn from that.”—Gary Snyder

“A really smart account of how American poets have understood the natural world. This book will be of great use to the poetry-challenged like me, who need help slowing down enough to take in what’s being said. It may not save the earth (though it will surely help), but nature poetry can help save you.”—Bill McKibben

“John Felstiner’s study is a remarkable attempt to bring the rich tradition of nature poetry to our aid in the current and ongoing ecological crisis. I find particularly moving his extraordinary range of sympathy for the very varied poets he discusses.”—Harold Bloom

“It is John Felstiner’s unique vision of the nature poem as a bio-world in itself—holding safe for us what we have freely endangered—that gives this book a radiance of power and conviction. It also marks it out as of central importance in the developing conversation on poetry and the environment.”—Eavan Boland

What Species of Creatures
Animal Relations From the New World
Sharon Kirsch

Based on early North American settler accounts of the animals they encountered, What Species of Creatures interrogates our impulse to trap, catch, skin, domesticate, eat, eradicate and otherwise bend to our use the animals in our midst.

“Lively—and deadly—chronicle. An original!” – Sylvia Fraser

Environmental thought pursues with renewed urgency the grand questions of the humanities: who we think we are, how we relate to others, and how we live in the world. It explores these questions by crossing the lines demarcating human from animal, social from material, and objects and bodies from techno-ecological networks. Bringing together research and writing in environmental philosophy, ethics, cultural studies, and literature, the series makes visible the contributions of humanities research to environmental studies, and fosters discussion that challenges and re-conceptualizes the humanities. Early Spring
An Ecologist and Her Children Wake to a Warming World
Amy Seidl
Foreword by Bill McKibben

“Seidl ponders the human predicament in a titanic and visionary personal inquiry that remains fixed on promise even in the face of grim and unsettling facts. This is a brave book.”
—Janisse Ray, author of Ecology of a Cracker Childhood

“A persuasively green brief in favor of organic lawns and playing fields . . . Let nature take its course, and rejoice that you need not mess with humanly hazardous herbicides. A delightfully contrary book that may just turn your weedy enemies into friends.”
—Janet Lembke, author of From Grass to Gardens

To see the world in a weed is Nancy Gift’s approach to ecology, and she combines the knowledge of a scientist with the understanding of a parent of young children to remind us that taking care of the environment begins in our own backyards.”
—Emmily Herring Wilson, author of No One Gardens Alone and Two Gardeners

A Weed by Any Other Name
The Virtues of a Messy Lawn, or Learning to Love the Plants We Don’t Plant
Nancy Gift

“Contributes something of great value to the tradition founded by Rachel Carson. Amy Seidl brings her own professional training as a biologist, as well as her engaging lyrical voice, to bear on the blurring of seasons around her Vermont home. . . . A timely, important book.”
—Janine Seidl, author of From Grass to Gardens
